Hence the Mpongwe kings of the Gaboon region in West Africa are buried secretly lest their heads should fall into the hands of men of another tribe, who would make a powerful fetish out of the brains.<sup>4</sup> Again, in Togoland, West Africa, the kings of the Flo tribe are buried with great secrecy in the forest, and a false grave is made ostentatiously in the king's house. None but his personal retainers and a single daughter know where the king's real grave is. The intention of this secret burial is to prevent enemies from digging up the corpse and cutting off the head.<sup>5</sup> "The heads of Important chiefs In the Calabar districts are usually cut off from the body on burial and kept secretly for fear the head, and thereby the spirit, of the dead chief, should be stolen from the town. If it were stolen it would be not only a great advantage to its new possessor, but a great danger to the chiefs old town, because he would know all the peculiar ju-ju relating to it For each town has a peculiar one, kept exceedingly secret, in addition to the general ju-jus, and this secret one would then be in the hands of the new owners of the spirit"<sup>6</sup> The graves of Basuto chiefs are kept secret lest certain more or less imaginary witches and wizards called Baloi<sup>1</sup> who haunt tombs, should get possession of the bones and work evil magic with them.<sup>7</sup> In the Thonga tribe of South Africa,
